EVERY DAY

1. Prospect first. First two hours on calls and outreach, before email.
2. Ask before you pitch. Three questions before any product talk.
3. Next step on every call. A date and time on the calendar before you hang up.
4. CRM the same day. Their words, the four answers, the next step.
5. Plan tomorrow today. Top three accounts and your first call booked.

EVERY WEEK

1. Friday pipeline check. Every deal has a dated next step.
2. 15 minutes with your manager. One win, one stuck deal, one thing to practice.
3. Practice one call. Role-play or listen back to a recording.

EVERY MONTH

1. Learn one product cold. Two sentences and the problem it solves.

TEN QUESTIONS

1. What made you take this call today?
2. How do you handle security today, and who does it?
3. What worries you most about your network or data?
4. Had a scare in the last year? What happened?
5. If you were hit tomorrow, how long to recover?
6. What does your cyber insurance require?
7. Is there a date coming up that matters?
8. Who else would weigh in on this?
9. How do purchases like this get paid for?
10. What would you need to see to take the next step?

FOUR QUESTIONS, NEED FIRST

N	Need Do they have a problem we solve?
T	Timeline Is there a date that matters?
A	Authority Who else decides?
B	Budget Is money set aside, or can it be?

GREEN Need is Yes and two others are Yes. Book the next meeting.

YELLOW Need is there, others are not yet. Fill the gap.

RED No need. Set a check-in date and move on.

THE CALL IN FIVE STEPS

1. Open. Who you are, why you called, ask for a few minutes. About 30 seconds.
2. Ask. Three to five questions. One at a time. Then stop talking.
3. Listen and write it down. Their words, not yours.
4. Confirm. "So what I heard is... did I get that right?"
5. Set the next step. Date, time, and who. Send the invite before you hang up.

THE NEXT STEP RULE

Weak: "Send me some info."

Strong: "I'll send it now. Can we review it together Thursday at 2?"

TWO FOLLOW-UPS THAT ALWAYS WORK

"Tell me more about that." "What did that cost you?"

Do the habits and the results follow. Log your week every Friday in the Habit Tracker.